TIME IS NOT YET RIPE

THE short ballot is presumably all right, for the Nevada Bar Association has tentatively declared it to be so, but this means the placing in the hands of the governor of Nevada a power such as has not heretofore been exercised by any single individual in the state of Nevada. It would be all right if the chief executive were one in whom not only power but confidence were reposed. He must be a man of keen discernment, ripe experience and absolute integrity, one against whom no barbs or shafts of criticism might reasonably be thrown. He must have no political debts to pay and no friends to reward or enemies to punish. He must be an ideal man, one possessed of the highest ideals, coupled with knowledge of men and measures.

When Nevada possesses such a governor, the time is ripe for the short ballot. If it is introduced prior to that time, the state will seethe with excitement and criticism will be rampant and probably well deserved.

SCHEDULE CAN'T SUIT ALL

AN EVENING train out of Goldfield and Tonopah, to connect with an early morning westbound train at Reno, together with several eastbound, would have been accomplished if it had not been for the objections entered with the state railway commission by towns along the line, where passage had to be taken by night. But what of the present schedule where passengers from Hawthorne to Tonopah and Goldfield must either stay up all night or take their repose in three sections? It's a good wind that does not blow down the chimney, snatch the clothes from the line and fill the eyes of both the bad and the good men full of dust.

UNITED STATES WILL UMPIRE THE GAME

THE BONANZA does not feel elated and egotistical over the receipt of personal letters from titled people in Germany and England in which love of and to and for and with and by the United States is expressed and the suggestion made that editorial articles be toned and news stories tinted in favor of one or the other of the causes that are in conflict.

The Bonanza is pleased to receive these letters expressing camaraderie and also acknowledges with thanks the flood of books and pamphlets that are being received from either side. This paper realizes, however, that it is not singled out for these favors, but that they are coming to every newspaper office in the United States. And why?

It is understood by both the allied and central powers that the time will come, is rapidly approaching, when appeal must be made to some neutral power for the settlement of differences, for the determining of the basis upon which peace is to be settled. Of all the nations not involved in the controversy the United States stands forth as the one big commonwealth that has not only the wisdom but the power to dictate the terms of settlement, where there are differences. Either side would give a huge fortune, sufficient to ransom all earthly kings, for the good will of America. Hence the tidal wave of literature that is flowing across the Atlantic into the newspaper offices of the United States.

A PRIMORDIAL PASSION

IT IS barely time between consideration of selfish, sordid propositions to give thought to passion, whether of the artificial, latter day type, or the primordial, but an episode has taken place here that is worthy of more than the passing thought.

Willie Bob is a little savage, a full blooded Pah-Ute. He was taken from his wickieup near Round Mountain by officers of the government and placed in the training school near Carson City, to receive the veneer of civilization, with the result that he would either return to his tribal relationship and racial habits and customs and laws upon graduation, or become one of the filthy camp followers of the Nevada towns, the alcohol laden, opium denuded Indians that have helped make Carson City prosperous through process of federal law. There is always a chance that Willie Bob might emerge from his tribal environments and become a useful member of society, which is a very remote chance at best.

Willie is a savage. His home is on the desert, where his father and mother, his brothers and sisters are, where he may pursue game and lure fish, where he may live as his ancestors lived away back to remote ages. The love he bore for his home and his people caused him to walk 200 miles across the desert, keeping far from the habitations of the white and the wigwams of his tribesmen. He subsisted on grass and sagebrush and went many weary miles without water. Now he must be returned to the Stewart Institute. It does not seem right to force upon the Indian the customs which he abhors and the rules which irk. Let Willie Bob stay with his people. He is better off in the wastes of Smoky valley than he is in the abiding place of the whites, where degenerating influences combat the better impulses that the people at the school are undoubtedly conscientious in their efforts to instill.

The Chicago correspondent of the "Public Ledger" of Philadelphia reports the results of a survey of national politics made by a Republican leader, and which sets forth that no Republican need worry about the effect of the present business activities in the mind of the voter, for all understand that the revival is due to the war in Europe and not to any government policy. He believes that the ordinary man can see what has happened, and that the rank and file are feeling the pressure of bad times almost as much as before the onrush of war orders began. The Republicans will then go to the country with a strong arraignment of Democratic policies, which, in the absence of the war in Europe, would have meant financial disaster to the country.

GEYSER STRUCK ON NEVADA STOCK FARM

An artesian flow of water registering a temperature of 110 degrees was a surprise that was in store for T. E. Freeman and a force of well borers at work on the Nevada stock farm, says the Reno Journal. The well was down to a depth of 430 feet when the vein was struck and with a gush of mud and steam there was a commotion that resembled a miniature volcano. The pressure forces the geyser to a height of about 25 feet and the flow is estimated to be 60 gallons a minute, or about $6,000 gallons per day.
